Steven Deckard reported he needed to bring back the Versiti agreement. He met with their director and previous head of legal counsel and they wanted to update the dates and removed a portion within exhibit B that stated we would reimburse Versiti, which was incorrect. They are actually reimbursing Eskenazi for use of blood products. Eskenazi is currently validating their coolers and they should be launching with the whole blood in the next couple weeks. Commissioner Weaver motioned to approve the new agreement with the changes. Commissioner Myers seconded. Motion carried 3-0.

Tony Sommer reported a topic that has come up with the courthouse renovation having to do with the child support offices located on the first floor. The idea was to have masonry walls for that record room to provide security for child support records and in compliance with federal regulations from the Internal Revenue Service because such records include tax information. They need to secure perimeters for the records. The problem encountered on the first floor in the old Surveyor's office will not support the weight of the records and masonry walls. A proposal would be to try to provide concrete work under that area of the flooring to support the masonry walls. He cannot use his incentive fund to cover the cost, but he can support purchasing fireproof storage cabinets that will cost about $35,000 which would be the first perimeter to secure the records. The concrete work was around $25,000. Commissioner Weaver motioned to move forward with the concrete. Commissioner Myers seconded. Motion carried 3-0.

Amy Perkins reported that the men's side of Parkview is full and she has six women and the upstairs above the women is currently non-functional because the restrooms are not functioning. She is currently working on getting quotes for repairs. She has a men's waiting list but she doesn't have the space. There are a few rooms where the heating and AC units are not working and she will get quotes for those as well.
